

As an avid user of the media I disagree with the intended plan to get rid of the laws limiting ownership and cross-ownership of media outlets. By limiting the ownership of media outlets, one corporation is not completely in control of the mass media, therefore allowing varied opinions to be heard. Forfeiting the laws already in place will cause only one, close-minded opinion to be heard. Such domination by one corporation limits diversity in our country, therefore weakening and challenging the strong democracy in place today.

Lindsey James